War in Ethiopia Leads to Refugee Crisis in Sudan

Welthungerhilfe is Providing 250,000 Euros to Supply Refugees

Bonn/Berlin, 2020-11-23 The military conflict in the Ethiopian province of Tigray is forcing thousands of families to leave their villages and their land, to seek shelter in neighbouring Sudan. There has been bitter fighting for more than two weeks between the central government in Addis Ababa and the Tigray People's Liberation Front (TPLF).

According to United Nations figures, around 2,500 people are currently crossing the border daily into Sudan. After walking for days, the refugees are exhausted when they reach villages in the provinces of Kassala and Gedaref. About 40,000 refugees urgently need humanitarian assistance, as they are arriving in Sudan hungry, thirsty, and terrified. They had to leave everything behind in their homeland. The UN expects a further increase to as many as 400,000 people over the coming months.

“The people are desperate, because they find themselves in a dramatic and undignified situation. The help provided so far is not enough: they have no water, no food, hardly any toilet facilities, and no roof over their heads. Everything is in short supply, and more people are arriving daily. We just can't leave these people behind”, says Shadrack Mutiso, Welthungerhilfe coordinator, about the situation in the refugee reception centres in Hamdayet.

As a first step, Welthungerhilfe will supply about 8,000 people in Sudan with clean drinking water, cooking utensils, soap, blankets, and clothes. Sanitation facilities are also being set up at the same time, to improve the disastrous hygiene conditions. People have sought refuge in former refugee camps, where Sudanese refugees lived during previous conflicts. At the same time, new camps are being set up, because the number of refugees is rising daily. Welthungerhilfe is also planning to set up shelters for children and women.

Welthungerhilfe is asking for donations for the people affected by the military conflict: <https://www.welthungerhilfe.de/spenden-aethiopien/nothilfe-fluechtlinge-tigray/>
